FOREWORD

FOR two months the staff of "The Revocanda" has labored to gather material which will, in years to come, keep fresh in the memories of our classmates, the delightful hours spent in the Somerville High School. If we succeed in this task, it will be a pleasure to pass on the proverbial scroll and pen to our successors.

To Our Teachers

When our school-day time is ended,
And along life's way we tread;
When the rocky road we've traversed
Longer is than that ahead;
When our feet find smoother pathways,
And our burdens lighter grow,
We shall wander back in mem'ry
To our school-days long ago.
There among the friendly faces,
Looking down the aisle of time,
Is a cheerful band of workers,
Four score teachers, in their prime.
Willingly they strove to guide us
In the path of wisdom's light;
Patiently they chid the lawless;
Time has proved that they were right.
As we see not at the planting
How the shrub will look in flower,
So we saw not how their teaching
Would enhance our future power.
As we near our graduation,
When our ways in life must part,
Let us turn and thank our teachers,
Wish them cheer with all our heart.
May they feel in part rewarded
For their work in our behalf,
When in years to come we praise them,
Somerville's fine teaching staff.

CHESTER F. PROTHERO, '17 B

To Our School

With you, dear school, our parting hour is near,
And, as we go to meet our larger life,
We pray you'll ne'er forget from year to year,
But ever guide and speed us in the strife.
Then we, in turn, with glad, uplifted eyes,
And hearts full resolute to do or die,
Shall go our ways, the whilst our lips shall say,
"Dear Alma Mater, God bless thee alway."

Senior Class History

BANG!! Flat tire! The second time that day! and in such heat, too! Telling my brother I was going to see if I could get a glass of water at the farmhouse up the road, I started forth. In answer to my knock, a healthy young woman of about my own age appeared at the door, and on hearing my request, cordially invited me in. She seated me in the cool living-room and went to get the glass of water, but quickly hurried back at an exclamation from me. She found me excitedly waving a Revocanda, which had been lying on the table, and exclaiming, "Where on earth did you get this?"

"Why, — why, my husband was a member of the 1917 B class of the Somerville High School and ——" but I breathlessly interrupted her.

"What is your husband's name?"

"Arthur Gorham."

"What Arth ——" I was astonished. I quickly told her that I also had been a member of that illustrious and never-to-be-forgotten class and knew Arthur Gorham so ——"

"Then you probably know my brother, too,— Harold Kolb."

"Know him, well I should say I did. Where are they? Anywhere near here?"

"Yes, they're both over in the north lot plowing. I'll call them."

Ten minutes later two great bronzed fellows in overalls and cow-hide boots stalked into the room. For a moment they both stared at me — then they knew who it was. After the usual explanations we sat down and talked over all the old times from the first day of school to the last. Harold started to read the old Class History, with many interruptions of—"Don't you remember him?" "Wasn't that a great time?" etc.

History of 1917 B

"It was September 15, 1913, when a motley crowd of pig-tailed misses — (Yes, we were all "Miss" and "Master" then) — and small boys stepped into the "Halls of Knowledge" under the title of Freshmen. How important we all felt! But very few weeks had passed before we realized that "Freshies" were not considered anything remarkable by the rest of the school.

And how huge the High School building seemed to us! New wings had been added during the summer and the system of numbering class-rooms had been changed, so that Freshmen were not the only ones who were distractedly rushing about in search of their proper places. The teachers were constantly appealed to until finally in desperation, diagrams were posted in different parts of the buildings where they were generally surrounded by questioning multitudes.

One day in December we all quietly (?) filed into the new hall for the dedication exercises. They were most appropriate and we all felt very proud of our large assembly room.

The first Somerville High School Orchestra Concert in the history of the school occurred May 29, 1914, and was a great success. Enterprising Freshmen were well represented among the violinists, drummers, cornetists, etc.

A certain day came and passed and lo, we were Sophomores! Heads were thrown back, chests began to swell, and we soon acquired the noted "Soph" strut. Yes, we were Sophomores in every sense of the word.

Early in the fall we organized as a class and became a part of that most earnest body known as "The Student Council." After nomination papers had been wildly circulated and the required number of Sophomores waylaid, we elected as our dignified officers:

ARTHUR GORHAM	President
MARGARET DESMOND	Vice-President
HERBERT HAM	Secretary
HARRY MOORE	Treasurer

Class meetings were indeed scarce that year; we never held one.

Our class team, however, made a very notable athletic record. They played the Freshman, the Junior, and the Senior teams and were victorious in every game. For these strenuous labors and others, they received their numerals, and closed the year with a banquet. After that the "Sophs" felt that they were the class.

Another graduating class departed and we became Juniors and upper classmen. Arthur Gorham was again elected our honored president; but this time Merritt Farren was vice-president, John Vaupel, secretary, and Edward Clark, treasurer.

Soon the Juniors were seen proudly wearing a small, round, gray pin with the numerals '17 on it. These were the Recognition Pins which our class, so remarkable in originality, had introduced into the school, an innovation which the other classes rapidly followed.

On February 16, we held an animated class meeting at which President Gorham presided (with the support of the piano). After heated discussion the class voted to hold an entertainment, reception and dance on March 17. At the same time the committee to draw up a constitution and to decide on a class flower, was elected as follows: Dorothy Dooling, Leon Wilson, Mildred Steere, and Harry Moore. The committee to plan for and preside at the function was composed of Dorothy Haskell, Ambrose Ford, Winnifred Kenney, James Sawyer, Louise Wyman, and Merritt Farren.

The first 1917 B class event, long looked forward to by us, was successfully held on March 17, in High School Hall. At this time a Greek play called "The Twins" was presented, in which Arthur Gorham and Max Robson, as the twins, were loyally supported by an all-Junior cast. After the players had been vigorously applauded, a social hour with dancing was enjoyed by all.

On May 29, the classes gathered in the hall to observe Memorial Day exercises, as well as to do honor to a fellow-classmate, Edward Derby, the winner of the memorial prize essay, "True Patriotism," for which he was awarded a gold medal.

Another dignified and solemn(?) class meeting, and a Junior Night Committee, to plan for our banquet and dance, was elected; Arthur Gorham, Merritt Farren, John Vaupel, Edward Clark, Ambrose Ford, Dorothy Haskell, Harold Kolb, Dorothea Shay, Albert Kiley, and Mildred Steere. On June 8, 1916, the banquet and dance was held, and was very well supported by the members of the class. Mr. and Mrs. John A. Avery and several members of the faculty, formed the receiving line. President Gorham gave us all a hearty welcome and then—we began to eat. By the time we had our stomachs filled with good things, and had our menu cards well filled with autographs, we scrambled upstairs to enjoy the entertainment. The programme was as follows:

READINGS Winifred Stackpole

SOLO DANCE Elizabeth Haskell

THREE SCENES FROM "THE RIVALS"

Cast:—Elaine Duhig, Gladys Bowditch, Adelaide Furlong,
Harold Graves, and James Sawyer

SINGING AND DANCING Esther Slade, Parke Appel

Then social dancing — and we all went home at half-past eleven.

1917B certainly promised well for Originality, Progressiveness, Liveliness and Achievement.

An unusually lengthy vacation and October 2 found us all (almost all) back at dear old S. H. S. At last, we had become grave and dignified Seniors! But in name only, it was to be feared, for the faculty seemed to find us almost as happy-go-lucky and troublesome as when we were Freshmen.

On October 24, the Seniors, to the envy of the other classes, were allowed to omit the sixth period and go down to the Bell School polling-booth to cast their votes for the class officers. The suffragettes in the class had a chance to vote that day at least. Those elected were:—

HARRY MOORE	President
DOROTHY HASKELL	Vice-President
WILDA CHIPMAN	Secretary
HAROLD KOLB	Treasurer

The new officers buckled right down to work and called a class meeting in which it was decided to have the four class officers, together with Edith Foster and Thomas Wallace, plan for a dance to be held in December. On the night of December 15, the loyal members of 1917 B ploughed their way through a raging snowstorm to the High School Hall to attend the Character Party and Dance. After the grand march, in which many beautiful and grotesque costumes were displayed, the judges gave their decision. Emma Parks as "Statue of Liberty," and Paul Guilderson dressed in woman's apparel, were awarded the prizes for having the most original costumes at the dance. Social dancing followed and the party was voted by all a great success.

Other meetings followed in which we talked over the project of having a Year Book. The class elected managers of the Book, chose Champlain as class photographer, and voted to eliminate some of the customary social affairs connected with graduation and simply have Senior Night — Graduation — Diplomas. Then good-bye to dear old Alma Mater and the Class of 1917 joined the vast Army of the Alumni.

A few of us were fortunate, during our Freshman year, in having Mr. Charles T. Murray as a teacher and friend. He was a man greatly beloved and respected by all. On April first he passed away, but the memory of his skill as a teacher and his kind helpfulness will long remain in the minds of his pupils.

A second time during our high school course Death called a member of our faculty. Mr. S. Henry Hadley, for forty-six years the faithful musical director of the high school, died on February 2, 1915. Mr. Hadley accomplished a great work among the students, for he taught them to appreciate the best in music.

Four happy years the Class of 1917 B has spent in the Somerville High School. We trust that the years to follow may be years of such greater attainment that we shall recall with gratitude the strong foundation that our Somerville Alma Mater helped us to build."

As Harold finished that closing sentence we all heartily agreed that we were indeed proud to have been members of the glorious Class of 1917 B.

MARJORIE B. STEVENS, '17 B

Class History 1918 A

ONE cold, bright morning the last of January, 1914, a group of tiny children, much elated by their own importance, climbed Central Hill and honored Somerville High School with their presence for the first time. There they were to remain for four long years and to change gradually from that happy state of oblivion to which Freshmen alone can attain, "Knowing not and knowing not that they know not", to exalted Seniors endowed with a superlative degree of knowledge which inspires awe in the wondering soul of every "new" little girl and boy.

As Freshmen we were not, for the first six months, allowed to organize; but being Freshmen, neither did we realize that we were slighted and scorned by our Superiors, but went our happy-go-lucky way, stumbling along the path of learning and continuing to think ourselves the only class in school. On Class Day, however, we were formally recognized, and one of our number, David Hill, was chosen to lead the class in marching and cheering, and also to receive our present class colors, orange and black, from the graduating class of 1914.

In the early fall we elected our class officers as follows:—

DAVID HILL	President
HENRY SHEA	Vice-President
RAYMON ELDRIDGE	Secretary
LAWRENCE CODDING	Treasurer

Although the policy of the school forbade any startling festivities on the part of "Freshies", we enjoyed ourselves in our own way, holding several class meetings of no importance whatever, talking over what we would do if we only had the chance.

Upon entering our Sophomore year, however, we eagerly shouldered our new responsibilities, and endeavored to learn what was expected of us. This year we kept our Freshman officers and although not achieving marked success along social lines as a class, our various divisions devised popular entertainments in the girls' gymnasium. The General Division organized a Sport Club with Miss Low as general "guide, philosopher and friend," and conducted a number of dances, skating parties and picnics, winning the reputation of the liveliest division of our class, although the Technology Boys and Normal Girls followed suit with several very enjoyable dances.

The College group, however, scorning such childish and simple amusements, organized their English class with Miss Low's assistance, electing Egan and Miss Lynch as first chairman and secretary, and Sullivan and Miss Furlong as second. Here Egan won fame for his quiet (?) ties and "Sully" a lasting reputation for speeches, as he was willing (?) to serve on any and all occasions.

Then we advanced one step further and became upper classmen. Our Junior election which took place early in the year resulted as follows:—

HENRY SHEA	President
EDITH LYNCH	Vice-President
GERTRUDE HINCKS	Secretary
GEORGE YOUNG	Treasurer

For our Junior banquet and dance we elected the following committee of arrangements:— Edith Schill, Eva Wallace, Margaret Taylor, Parke D. Appel, William Bennett, Lawrence Coddington.

A reception was held early in the evening, after which a bountiful dinner was served to which the large number present did ample justice. President Shea addressed us, welcoming all, and commending us for our hearty cooperation; also he claimed a number of "S" men for our class. This was certainly justifiable, for we were represented on the football eleven by the following:— Keating, Conlon, Young, Sullivan, Shea.

After the banquet an entertainment was given by members of the class. Dancing followed until 12.00 p.m.

A dance was also held at the Fitzedward Bungalow on Saturday evening, January 12, 1917, with Miss Low and Mr. Pearson acting as chaperons.

In January, 1917, we entered upon our last year, and we are determined to make it one long to be remembered by the school and our own class. Two thrilling events at the beginning of the year we shall never forget. Crowley donned his "long pants", and has since insisted upon being known as Mister Crowley, signing all important (?) papers thus. "Cupid" Conlon also arrived unexpectedly in our midst, having come through all the storm and stress of the three preceding years with that ineradicable smile, secure in the conviction that "Everybody loves him."

So far, our activities have been confined to a sleigh party which was held on Wednesday evening, February 27. The party went to Lexington Inn where luncheon was served and dancing followed. The evening ended with cheers and class songs.

Our class has been broken up, however, by the fact that February graduations have passed quietly out of existence, leaving us the choice of graduating in June 1917 or 1918, or risking receiving our diplomas in February, 1918. Naturally, our class is divided, but contrary to the old adage, we have not fallen, although no longer united.

The Crystal Gazer

Wake, ye most elusive Muse!
Come, inspire my ready pen;
Guide my brain, its thoughts to choose!
Ah! ye wake and smile again.

* * * * *

From golden incense burners
A thick, blue smoke arose;
Amid her mystic symbols
Sat Mava, in repose.

The crystal ball of marvels
She held cupped in her hands;
The surface slowly clouded,
Obeying her commands.

Then slow the smoke wreaths parted;
And in the ball's dim depths
Appeared in scenes and omens,
What was unknown, unguessed.

A miner dipped his sluice-pan
In swift Alaskan stream,
That flowed from glacier distant
To valley fields serene.

Then swirled he round his burden
Of gravel and of sand;
The dross flew far, unheeded,
The gold stayed in the pan.

Again the sphere was clouded,
And then it cleared away;
A different miner stood there,
With beard so long and gray.

The stream of Life rolled by him,
As he dipped the pan, our School,
And Father Time, the miner,
Brought up his dish heaped full.

And then, that youthful burden,
Through four long years he whirled;
The laggards and the dullards
From off the rim were hurled.

At last his toil was ended,
And in the pan remained
A happy band of graduates,
The golden hoard he gained.

Then slowly this view faded,
And quickly came still more,
Succeeding swift each other,
Like passing an open door.

In summer and in winter,
In schoolroom and at sport;
Debating, baseball, football,
Pursuits of every sort.

Our classmates well remembered
Passed quickly 'cross the scene,
Enhancing our school's glory.
Then mists came in between.

But ever, in the background,
The three gray sister Fates
Stood smiling, ever spinning
The lives of us graduates.

Out through the mist came reaching
The mighty hand of God;
And this skein He made narrow,
While that one He made broad.

And now and then a tangle
In someone's life He made;
For striving makes us stronger,
Though 'tis easier to evade.

But ever as He laboured,
The Fate with death's grim shears
Worked not, but stood and waited
The passing of the years.

With trembling, eager fingers
The seeress held the ball,
As if some wondrous vision
Her senses did appal.

From out the mists our high school,
Bedecked with ivy green,
Arose, while from its portals
Came our class with sober mein.

Reluctantly they parted;
And each then went his way,
His destiny to fashion
As Fate decrees he may.

The crystal gazer started,
As if waking from a dream;
And murmured, soft as Echo,
" 'Twas the class of June, 'seventeen."

* * * * *

Thanks, O best-beloved Muse,
For the aid ye freely yield.
May these lines find some excuse
In the faulty pen I wield.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council

THE first Student Council of the Somerville High School was formed in 1914, with Earl Cushing, president of the class of 1915 A, as its president.

It was started by Mr. Avery and Mr. Hatch, the latter until recently a member of our faculty. They had been trying to find some means by which the student body of the school could be represented in matters pertaining to their interest. As a result the officers of the various classes were called together, for it was thought these members could represent the student body to the best advantage. After a few meetings, Mr. Avery decided that an appropriate name for this committee would be the "Student Council".

This Council is intended to represent the student body in all affairs concerning both faculty and pupils. It serves also as a means by which the students may propose new projects to the faculty. It aims to cooperate with the faculty in increasing school enthusiasm for better work and for better discipline. It aims to encourage interest in athletics and in other school activities.

The entertainments and the recent dances which have been given by the Council show how deeply the members are interested in the social welfare of the school.

Much good work has been accomplished by past Student Councils. They have given afternoon entertainments, as all the students know, but a large majority of the pupils do not associate many other undertakings with the Student Council. For instance, the Council has tried to encourage keeping the school building and grounds neat and attractive, and for that purpose had placed in each room a printed "clean-up" poster. They have given the proceeds of their entertainments to help athletic activities, such as tennis, hockey, and so forth, and to help in the support of the Radiator.

While Thomas Scanlon was president of the Student Council, the filing rules were discussed and changed, and although the system adopted did not prove entirely satisfactory, the Council may receive part of the credit for starting the matter.

The Student Council of 1917 has been a busy one, a great amount of credit being due to its lively president, Harry L. Moore, 1917 B.

This Council has had charge of two very successful afternoon dances, and has given one entertainment which was very successful. Of the proceeds of the dances, fifty dollars was given to the Athletic Association, ten dollars to the Glee Clubs; the proceeds of the entertainment went to the Radiator. This Council had published the first Student Council number of the Radiator, the cover of which was designed by Harold Kolb, one of its members.

The past presidents have been Earle Cushing, '15 A; Clayton Ellis, '15 B; Carl Newton, '16 A; Thomas Scanlon, '16 B; and John Grimmons, '17 A.

The officers of the 1917 Council are Harry Moore, '17 B, president; Wilda Chipman, '17 B, secretary; Ruth Boothby, '19 A, treasurer.

Juniors

Class History 1918 B

IN the year 1914, about the time of the goldenrod and the yellowing corn, four hundred and twenty-three atoms of humanity termed "Freshmen" wended their timid way through the doors of the Somerville High School.

Everything seemed strange, and the programs we made out that memorable day looked the same to us as a problem that pertains to intricate calculus would to a child. Who can describe the joy that filled our hearts when we found that we were to go to a new room every forty minutes! Previous to this crisis in our lives we had had a new one only once a year. Later, however, that forty minutes seemed at times like a century.

No eminent writer of this time or of the past,—not even Shakespeare—could possibly portray our thoughts and feelings that first year of our high school careers. We were constantly held down by the deadly fear that we might intrude on the rights and premises of those noble beings, the "Seniors", or that sacred body, the "Juniors". We did not regret the fact that we were excluded from assembly periods, because it afforded us a splendid opportunity to study diligently—needless to say.

The first year passed, and we increased our mental capacity to a high degree. Under the parental supervision of Mr. Avery, our friend and adviser, we passed the first milestone without any serious catastrophe. As we had then become Sophomores, we elected our first class officers:—

THOMAS THORNTON	President
RAYMOND ELLIOTT	Vice-President
DOROTHY CURRIE	Treasurer
EMERY CLEMENTS	Secretary
DONALD GEDDES	Editor
MILDRED PESTELL	Assistant

We were deeply grieved by the passing away that year of two of our dear classmates, Wilfred Flood and Harold Perkins.

Division D carried on their English recitations that year by methods of parliamentary procedure. The most important advantages to be derived from this practice were in the possibility of Robert Durkee, or Robert Newton, or some other member of that brainy political division, being called to the presidency of the United States or some other important public office. In such an event these aspirants would be able to keep their hands out of their pockets, to keep their coats buttoned, and in general to keep from "looking like men that have been hanged and prematurely cut down". Division E did something not dissimilar. A Senate was organized with a Speaker, Senators, and all that composes such a body.

The second milestone has been passed and we are now Juniors, members of that noteworthy body that were so sacred to us two years ago. The first public event of importance was the election of officers:—

RAYMOND ELLIOTT	President
BEATRICE SAVAGE	Vice-President
PHILIP SHERMAN	Treasurer
DOROTHY CURRIE	Secretary
CHESTER MOORE	Editor
FREDERICK NOYES	Assistant

A class meeting was held to find the proportion of our class that wished "Recognition Pins". Margaret Hailwood and Donald Geddes constituted the pin committee and worked very well together. Later, another meeting was called to obtain the opinion of the "populace" as to the advisability of having a sleigh-ride. The opinion was favorable and those who participated remember with fond recollections that famous ride. It began as do most of the stories in the Radiator passed in by undergraduates:—"It was a cold, bleak, winter night and the wind howled through the creaking trees ——" The chaperons were Miss Norton and Mr. Hall. The circumstances and conditions of that sleighride were the same as many previous ones,— plenty of straw on the bottom to keep the feet warm, settees along either side of the sleigh and an abundance of heavy robes. Some, however, could not distinguish between the settees and the straw on the bottom.

We take pride in the fact that Tom Thornton, the "boy" that put the ball over for the lone touchdown in the De Paul game, is a member of '18 B. "Phil" Sherman played all the season and showed up in good shape. Kelliher, crack pitcher of the Baseball Team, is also a member of '18 B. McCarthy of '18 B, is captain of Cross Country. We do not profess to have a long list of athletes in our class, but what we have stand out as "stars". We claim two assistant managers: "Bill" Moore, assistant manager of Hockey, and Raymond Elliott, assistant manager of Baseball.

Four members of '18 B are on the Rifle Team:— Captain Ralph Binney, Alvin Sloane, Russell Greenough and Raymond Elliott. The Rifle Team came third in the league this year; if the remaining three on the team had been Juniors, we should undoubtedly have come first.

We cannot refrain from complimenting here Editor Moore and his co-partner Noyes, for by their untiring effort and ceaseless labor they have gained the record of being the only class to excel the Seniors in their "write-ups".

1918 B had the honor of having several of its members on the Debating Teams. Girls' Debating Team: Margaret Hailwood, Anna Fulton, Reina Hadley; alternates, Dorothy Currie, Bertha Kerner, Mildred Pestell. Boys' Debating Team: Philip Sherman, James Morrison. Reina Hadley is president-elect of the team next year. Margaret Hailwood is vice-president. Anna Fulton is secretary.

While modestly giving ourselves a little credit, we must not forget "Alice" Edgerton. He is faithfully doing his duty for his country as a member of the Boy Scouts. Maybe some day he will be Scoutmaster.

Junior Night, which was held on June 15, was the crowning success of the year. This fact is undoubtedly due to the hard work of the committee elected — David Hill, Thomas Thornton, Erwin Allen, Helen Coakley, Ruth Foster, and William Moore. On account of the war, the customary banquet was omitted, but this fact did not hinder us from having a big dance, a splendid program for the entertainment, and refreshments.

We have struggled with our books for three years and are becoming more intelligent and sedate every day. We feel that we shall be able to conduct ourselves as Seniors soon. We shall try very hard to imitate the present Seniors by walking through the corridors with much dignity and with heads held high, as do proper butlers in wealthy families. Our third year has nearly passed and we sincerely regret that we have but one year more.

RAYMOND ELLIOTT, '18 B

Sophomores

Class History 1919 B

IN the fall of 1915, we, the Class of 1919 B, toddled into this red-brick building, with the determination to prepare ourselves for the outside life. We felt that we were gazed upon with pity, because we were "freshies." The Radiator told us not to roll our hoops on the lawn, and to buy our "Mellin's Food" in the school lunchroom. However, in spite of the teasing of that famous year, we came through successfully and are still feeling merry.

Even though we were the victims of the fun-making, we were always ready to help in any cause which was for the interest and betterment of our beloved school.

Our class was the first one to organize a "Clean-Up Campaign." This campaign originated in Mr. Mahoney's Civics Class and enlisted the efforts of many faithful students. Placards urging everyone to "clean up" were placed in many conspicuous places throughout the school. The members of this committee were termed "inspectors," and it was their duty to inspect all the rooms. After a thorough inspection, the best-kept room received "honorable mention," and the notice was published in our bulletin. The chairman of this notable campaign was Edgar Lyle, who proved himself worthy of his position. Our headmaster, Mr. Avery, was proud of the successful way in which we conducted this affair.

After what seemed like a long wait for our favorite month, June, vacation came at last and we received our beloved (?) report cards, which ushered us on the way to our Sophomore Year.

On the morning of September 13, we once more found our way back to the House of Learning on Central Hill. In a much shorter period of time, we became acquainted with our books and surroundings, and were ready for business during the rest of our year.

The first event which we participated in was the parade of High School boys, in honor of the welcoming home of our Companies K and M of the 8th Regiment.

At this time the class elections took place, in which the following candidates were successful:

WILLIAM BALDWIN	President
VIRGINIA GILMORE	Vice-President
LILLIAN TRASK	Secretary
CHARLES KOLB	Treasurer

A short time after the elections a Sophomore meeting was held in the hall. Many topics of interest to the class were discussed, and President Baldwin spoke of the need of "co-operation," in order to have a successful year. An entertainment committee was nominated, composed of Herbert Treat, George Keegan, Crystal Vosburg, Alice Kelly, Edward Cook.

A Sophomore Clean-Up Committee was nominated, consisting of the following: Mr. Herring, Mr. Estey, Mr. Duhig, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Easton, Mr. Doten, Mr. Cook, Mr. McGowan, Miss Casey, Miss Keenan, Miss Kelly.

The latter committee had two meetings, but the members manifested so little interest, that it was decided to give up the campaign.

A decision was quickly made on our "Recognition Pins," and in two weeks nearly every member had his pin, and seemed more than satisfied with the selection.

After two months' practice in "Physical Culture," the first competitive drill was won by a Sophomore division, led by William Wardrope.

We will challenge anyone who says that we did not support the Football team. Four of our fellows, namely, Roche, Coyne, Reardon, and Treat, deserve much credit for the way in which they played their positions. They showed the fight and spirit which helped our boys of Red and Blue to gain victory.

Our class was not only well represented in football, but in hockey also. Blish and little "Jimmy" Downing played "slashing" hockey, and showed that they were faithful puck-chasers throughout the winter.

It gave us great pleasure to have our secretary, Lillian Trask, on the Girls' Debating Team. Though the team did not win the championship this year, their expectations are to have the "shield" next year.

"Lest we forget" the Track team, we would add that two of our fellows, Merton Cook and Arthur Hurd, made their "S" this year.

We all extend our thanks to our editor, Franklin Doten, for his faithful services during the year.

Freshmen

Class History 1920 B

ONE bright, sunny May day in 1917, a distinguished visitor wished to inspect the high school of our city. He had heard so much about the Somerville High School that he had been possessed with a desire to find out for himself what we were doing. I had been assigned as his escort through the building. After visiting the Seniors, dignified to the extreme, the Juniors, happy and easy-going, and the Sophomores, staid and business-like, we finally came to a room on the first floor.

"Why, surely, we are not still in the high school?" said my companion. "Haven't we skipped to the kindergarten?"

Poor children! how little they realized how insignificant they looked.

"Yes," I said, "I admit they are rather young in appearance, but you see, these are the Freshmen. But, my dear sir, I don't want you to think that because they are young and childish in appearance that they really aren't doing anything in the Somerville High School. This particular room, in January, won the prize for physical training. One of the pupils is giving an account of what was done this year. Shall we listen?"

This is what we heard:—

"At the beginning of the school year, 1916-1917, physical training was introduced in the Somerville High School, as an experiment, which has indeed worked well and has met with great enthusiasm on the parts of both pupils and teachers. To make this subject more interesting, competitions between the various groups were arranged. In the first trial all of the groups were judged and out of them all, the six having the highest average were to compete in the semi-final round. In the semi-final round the two boys' groups and the two girls' groups having the highest average were picked for the final competition, out of which one group was chosen as the winner of the entire competition.

"In the first competition the Freshman girls' group from this room won, of which we are justly proud, and the Sophomore boys' group from the third floor corridor."

"Very interesting indeed," my companion said, "and I am very glad to see that the Freshmen are so energetic."

"Energetic in many ways," said I, emphasizing the words, "as shown by a basketball game. The captain of the girls' basketball team, Madeline DeWitt, is in this room and I am sure she will be glad to tell us what they have done this year."

The captain gave us willingly the following account:—

"The basketball team is another credit to the Freshman class. This year was the first year that basketball has been played in the Somerville High School. Many girls came out when Coach Ray, of the Sargent School, gave the call. The following girls played in the game: Ruth Cutler, Helen Northrup, and Bertha Gorsun as forwards; guards, Lillian Pierce, Evelyn McGillivray, Ruth Newman, and Elizabeth Ray; side center, Lena Rodrick, Eleanor Carr, and Grace Haley; jumping center, Alice Lyden and Madeline DeWitt (captain).

"These girls made a good showing when they beat the Juniors with the score 12 to 8. The Sophomores won from the Seniors and this necessitated a game to decide the championship of the school. The game was played in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium between the Sophomore and Freshman teams. Good spirit and hard playing featured. The Freshmen had met worthy rivals this time and had to submit to a defeat. The 'bitterness of defeat' was sweetened by the manner in which the girls rallied during the last three minutes. In this time Ruth Cutler made three successive goals. In the midst of the excitement the whistle blew and it was all over but the cheering. The Sophomores won 24 to 16."

The next room we entered had the appearance of a courtroom, but upon inquiring, we learned that this room was a town called Civicton and a town meeting was being held. A moderator and a town clerk had been elected and Civicton was supposed to have the same conditions as Somerville, so the bills were based on that city. The pupils were contemplating changing from a town to a city and electing a Board of Aldermen, with the former moderator as president of the board. Five committees were to be chosen, with a chairman at the head of each, and the committee meetings held after school.

"Good! The discussion and passing of bills must be both instructive and interesting," replied the visitor. "I must confess that I was mistaken in my views about the Freshmen when I started to investigate."

"I am glad that I have been able to prove to you that Freshmen are progressive," I said mischievously.

"I admit my defeat," continued my companion. "You surely have the promise of a great future if all Freshman classes prove as progressive as the one I have just visited."

Could anybody wish for greater praise?

Freshmen! keep on with the good work and fill each year with accomplishments to your credit.

FOR the first time in the history of the Somerville High School the Senior Class voted to have a year book — something which would be a reminder of the four years spent with our classmates in the rooms of the “big red schoolhouse on the hill.” At a meeting of the class, Harold H. Kolb was elected editor-in-chief and Arthur N. Gorham business manager. The remainder of the staff were appointed later.

Although laboring under the disadvantage of limited time before going to press, the entire staff has worked faithfully and earnestly. It is the hope of the editors that their efforts in this new venture may serve to inspire later classes to continue the good work which has been so happily inaugurated by the Class of 1917 B.

The Radiator, 1916-1917

THE Radiator, under the management of the above-named editorial staff has, during the past year, fully maintained the high standard established by our previous editors, John Chipman, '15 B, and Arnold Murray, '16 B. The "Latin mottoes", introduced by Arnold Murray, have been continued as well as the department entitled "Public Occurrences" and the "Sagacious Sage".

A brand-new department, under the name of "Doings in Our Midst", has been introduced by us this year—edited under the pen name of "Fair Weather".

Because of the unusually late opening of school last fall, there was no October number,—the regulation Football Number coming out in November. Our Christmas Number attained its usual success, containing a feature never introduced before, i.e., the Honor List, subdivided into the "Maximum Credit" and the "Credit" lists.

The Mid-year Graduation Number contained the pictures of the class officers and the graduation speakers of 1917 A, as well as quotations applicable to the names of all the class members.

An Easter-Alumni Number was edited in March, containing some excellent stories from our well-known graduates, now in college. This was followed by a Sophomore Number in April, in which the Sophomore Class was well represented with stories, class-notes, and a class history by William Baldwin, its president.

Another innovation was the Student Council Number in May, a feature never before attempted in the history of our school paper. Nearly all the members of the Student Council were represented in this number by stories, cartoons, sketches, etc. Harold Kolb, our Staff Artist, designed for this number a wonderful new cover-cut which will probably be used in the future quite as much as our present cover design has been in the past.

The Graduation Number in June was the editorial triumph of the year. Every member of the staff, as well as the class editors and assistants, gave their best literary efforts to this souvenir number, with the result that they succeeded in producing the banner number of the year.

Esther Slade resigned in January because of change of residence, and Marjorie Stevens was appointed in her stead. Helen Cameron resigned in April on account of marriage, and Mildred H. Steere succeeded her as associate editor. Miss Stevens and Miss Steere were very valuable and welcome additions to the Radiator Staff, the latter especially contributing some very good editorials.

In conclusion, the Radiator Staff of 1916-17 wish to thank all members of their class and of the school for their assistance this year in the way of subscriptions and literary contributions.

DEBATING TEAM

Debating

DEBATING in the Somerville High School has passed beyond the elementary stage; it has secured a firm foothold, and is about to rise to its proper status in school life as the time rapidly approaches when it will be recognized by all at its true value.

The time has passed (if it ever existed) when students could say that debaters were "grinds"; that they were fellows who took up debating because they could not or would not take interest in, and "back" the other interests of the school, that they were fellows who did not take an interest in the social as well as the business side of school life.

That time has passed, as is shown by the fact that the members of the last three championship teams were all members of at least one of the other organizations of the school, were taking the hardest courses, and had the very best excuses for not debating, on the ground that they were "too busy". In proof of this I would state that on the three championship teams were three Student Council presidents, three presidents of the Senior class, eight class officers, a football captain and another player, two maximum credit and eight credit pupils, a Senior Class editor, and a business manager of the Radiator.

Now, stop and think a moment! Why was it that these students with all their other interests and studies, made a place for debating, an elective, in their high school curriculum?

The value of debating does not lie solely in the glory of winning a school debate, nor in any of the immediate results obtained. These are pleasing and interesting, but only important in so far as they are stepping-stones to greater and more lasting ends to be obtained in the future.

It has been frequently stated that the man who can think straight, who can formulate his ideas, and then say what he means, is the one that wins. This ability does not apply to debating alone. Debating merely furnishes the means, the training, which enables a man to think and speak clearly and logically, and to do this not only when he is addressing an audience or a group of friends, but to do it every day, year in and year out, and with each and every individual with whom he comes in contact.

This is the true value of debating, but, as is too often the case, the substantial, lasting value is frequently forgotten in desire for the immediate glory of victory.

The coaches of the championship 1917 team were Mr. Stephen H. Mahoney and Mr. Harry Sears of the faculty. The members were: Harry L. Moore '17, and three-year debater; Merritt F. Farren '17, and two-year debater; Edward H. Derby '17, James Sawyer '17, Philip Sherman '18, and James G. Morrison '18; the alternates were John Martin '17, and Paul Guilderson '17; Horace Z. Hayward '17 was the manager. This was Somerville's third successive victory and but one vote out of eighteen in the last three years, has been cast against them.

HARRY L. MOORE, '17 B

GIRLS' DEBATING SOCIETY

The Girls' Debating Society

ON March 9, 1917, the two teams from the Somerville High School met the debating teams from Brookline and Newton in their Annual Triangular Debate. The affirmative team, consisting of Helen Cameron '17 B, Lillian Trask '19 B, Dorothy Currie '18 B, and Mildred Pestell '18 B, as alternate, journeyed to Brookline High School Hall, where they were defeated by a vote of two to one. The negative side debated against Newton in the Somerville High School Auditorium. This team, composed of Reina Hadley '18 B, Anna Fulton '18 B, Margaret Hailwood '18 B, and Bertha Kerner '18 B, was victorious, the judges giving them a unanimous vote. Somerville lost the shield this year, but hopes to gain it back again next year.

Previous to the Triangular Debate, a trial debate was held every week for four weeks. At the final trial debate fourteen girls came out for the team and from these girls, the judges, members of the faculty, chose the eight girls for the Triangular Debate.

At a recent meeting of the Girls' Debating Society the following girls were elected as officers for 1917-1918: President, Reina Hadley; vice-president, Margaret Hailwood; secretary and treasurer, Anna Fulton. Reina Hadley will be secretary and treasurer of the Triangular League.

Boys' Glee Club

THIS season, for the first time in several years, the Boys' Glee Club has really accomplished something—has even achieved success. It has been encouraged and coached by Mr. Hall and Mrs. Topliff. It has given a number of recitals, most of them at the meetings of the English Club, with which the Glee Club is connected.

The Club desires to extend its hearty thanks to Mr. Avery for assisting on many occasions. His cooperation has been greatly appreciated by all.

In addition to giving a recital before the whole school, the Club made a good showing in the Spanish comic opera, Princess Bonnie.

It is sincerely hoped that in the years to come the Club will render to the school as pleasing and as acceptable service as it has done in the past.

WILLIAM E. PREBLE, '17 B, Director

ON November 28, 1916, the honor pupils of the Senior class met and organized a society to be known as "The English Club."

The purpose of the club is threefold. First, believing that scholarship is often overshadowed by the glamor of athletics, the society aims to grant public recognition to scholastic standing; second, it endeavors to give wholesome and agreeable recreation to its members; and third, by admitting all honor pupils to its membership, it hopes to spur the rank and file generally to a greater and more sustained effort to better its scholastic standing.

Honor pupils of the Senior and Junior classes are open to full membership, while those of the Sophomore and Freshman classes are eligible for associate membership; that is, they may attend the meetings, but they may neither vote nor hold office.

Meetings are held monthly, at which the favorite works of some well-known author are presented in an attractive manner, mingled with musical selections. Afterwards refreshments are served and dancing is enjoyed.

The society may truthfully lay claim to unmitigated success in its efforts. It has given honor pupils public recognition; it has furnished them with wholesome recreation. And it sincerely hopes that the school at large has been spurred to greater efforts in a scholastic way, by the desire to participate in its activities.

The Art Club

EARLY in March an organization was formed by Miss Bradford, head of the drawing department, which took for its name "The Somerville High School Art Club." Its purpose is to give those interested in various branches of art, such as sketching, cartooning, designing, etc., opportunity to further their knowledge in each branch and to perfect themselves in the same.

Under the leadership of President Kolb the Club, which has met every Monday afternoon in Room 400, has made great progress.

THE orchestra has had without question a successful year. Every Thursday, not excepting the vacations, the members have met and worked with unceasing enthusiasm. The co-operation between the members and the leader, Mr. Russell Cook, has been remarkable. The encouragement and interest on the part of Mr. McVey, the faculty, and friends has been a real factor in the success of the orchestra this year.

Medals were awarded to six senior members who have been the most loyal supporters. They are the following: Alice Padelford, Dorothy Dooling, Bella Ruff, Louise Hamilton, Chester Reynolds, William Perry.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL TEAM

Football

DICKERMAN — that name spelled wonders in football for Somerville for the year of 1916. It was chiefly through his efforts that Somerville gained the championship of the East and defeated De Paul Academy representing the West.

Somerville commenced practice in the early part of the year even before the school opened. When the day of reckoning came Coach Dickerman and Captain Keating had the team picked and ready for the first battle. We opened with Fitchburg Normal and easily defeated them, 20 to 0. Four games followed and Somerville was not once scored upon. Somerville's work attracted unlimited attention from the Boston papers. Coach Dickerman was highly enthusiastic over the work of his men. Captain Keating was just the man to lead his team to victory. His determination to win was a wonderful example for the players. Louis Smith, quarterback, formerly of St. John's, showed very good judgment in his choice of plays and almost supernatural wisdom in his choice of the man to carry the pigskin. His quick, snappy action kept the team on edge every moment. Herbert Treat was a mountain of strength at center, doing the work of a couple of men on the defensive and snapping the pigskin back to Smith in veteran fashion. Young and Sherman showed great ability in guarding the ends. Young was noticeably good on tackles and invariably stopped the opposing man in his tracks. His tackling in the Rindge game won the great admiration of the onlookers. Young and Smith were unequalled in handling forward passes. Ford and Reardon could always be counted upon when most needed, both having an opening ready for the backs to plunge through. Thornton deserved much credit. His reckless line-plunging was a big factor in all games. He had a natural instinct for finding openings to glide through. Thornton and Coyne formed a great machine for mass playing. Had not Thornton injured his knee early in the second half of the season, he would have had many field goals to his credit.

Summarizing the entire season, it may easily be said that Somerville has gained the title of Champions of the East and West. The outlook for 1917 is just as promising, and with such another interesting schedule as Manager Currie has arranged there should be great enthusiasm and success next year.

BASEBALL TEAM

Baseball

NOW! Manager Ford and Captain Deacon come into the foreground, for the great National game has centered the attention of all school fans upon it, and consequently upon the two men who are expected to see Somerville win out first place in the suburban league race.

Unfortunately, many of the early practice games were postponed because of weather conditions; but Somerville managed to travel to Revere and show the Revere boys how the game is played in Somerville. We romped home jubilant with a 6 to 2 victory. Medford took Somerville into camp, whitewashed them with a 5 to 0 defeat, but Somerville became incensed at this and trounced Melrose, 14 to 1.

Looking things over, and entirely overlooking war complications, it seems as though Somerville will repeat the 1917 season after the manner of 1914 and 1915. Let us hope for the best, and trust that the present International game will not take precedence over the National game.

Hockey

THE HOCKEY SEASON of 1916-1917 opened with a rush. In the middle of December the call for candidates brought an almost unlimited number of boys to defend the Red and Blue for Somerville. But the ice went as quickly as it came and Captain Wilson was obliged to resort to the basement for practice. If Coach Dickerman had been at all superstitious, he would never have permitted the boys to begin the hockey season in the cellar, for there was a peculiar relationship between the place of practice and their final position in the league. We may say, without being accused of offering an excuse, that the ice and bad conditions hampered the team in every manner.

Who's Zoo

DORIS HOMER

Popular name — Dotty.

A native of Somerville; but wanders into New Hampshire every summer.

Very playful and sociable. Harmless unless aroused.

H. MAXWELL ROBSON

Popular name — Max.

A native of Springfield; but confined in the 1917 B zoo for theft of paintings and Artz.

Harmless and hopeless.

DOROTHY HASKELL

Popular name — Dot.

A native of Somerville; but wanders everywhere throughout the year.

Given to chatting with the other animals. Likes to dwell very much in the Cliffs. Dangerous.

JOHN VAUPEL

Popular name — Johnnie.

A native of Arlington and often is found in his native zoo.

Fond of associating with animals of the Freshman zoo. Hopeless.

MARJORIE STEVENS

Popular name — Marge.

A native of Somerville, but is found often in the lakes of Massachusetts and New Hampshire in summer.

An exceptionally large consumer of "dates". Warning: Feed only well-filled "dates".

HARRY MOORE

Popular name — Harry.

A native of Somerville and very home-loving, rarely seen outside the city. The recognized leader of the 1917 B zoo; but very conservative.

Hopeless and loveless.

WILDA CHIPMAN

Popular name — Chippie.

A native of Somerville, but is very often found in the outskirts of the city.

Fond of talking, smiling, joking. A very helpful animal in the zoo; watches over all the little bunnies — known as Binneys.

HAROLD KOLB

Popular name — Harold.

A native of Somerville, but often found in Medford.

Very popular among the animals of the zoo, mainly because he is their treasurer. Loveless?

Class Alphabet

A stands for Miss Atwood, so merry and gay,
And B is for Bateman, who laughs all the day.
For C there's Miss Cameron, who with Cupid did flee,
Dot Dooling, with Derby, Deacon, Douglass for D.
For E there is Everett, all alone and no more.
F for Farren who helped us two victories to score,
While G is for Gorham, our honored ex-president,
H for Homer and Haskell, misses socially bent.
One J for five Johnsons will be quite sufficient,
Than Keating in football there are none more efficient.
For L there is Leland, quite studious but no grind,
And in M, President Moore whom the class stands behind.
N for Noyes, our Radiator Editor-in-chief,
With O for Miss Ordway so exempt from all grief.
P stands for Miss Parker who so loves to talk,
And Preble, who over the stage loves to stalk.
In R there's Max Robson and all of his band,
S — Miss Steere and Miss Stackpole strolling hand clasped in hand.
T represents Tibbitts, our remarkable "tosser,"
U stands for Us all, who left the games so much hoarser.
V will serve for Vaupel, with appearance so grand,
W for Miss Watson so much in demand.
For X, Y, and Z, there are no tales to tell,
Thus endeth the alphabet, and may you end as well.

Horrible Act of Disloyalty Committed Against Classmate

DIGNIFIED SENIOR HIGHLY IN- CENSED

One of the most irretrievable acts of injustice was committed against a Senior class-mate in Room 215. Owing to the strict censorship on the part of the faculty, the accurate facts and statements concerning the insidious act were not permitted to be disclosed to the public.

As the Revocanda reporters have been working incessantly on the case, endeavoring to ascertain decisively whether or not these rumors were perfect, they have succeeded in gaining the following information from excellent authority. It is definitely stated that Mr. Vaupel's gray hat was raised upon a window-stick, and supported thus it was thrust out a window of Room 215 for some indefinite, inept reason. Through the reprehension

HEROIC DEED EVERYBODY SAVED

Owing to the coolness of our classmate, Arthur Gorham, the abode of the Upper Classmen was spared from disaster. Gorham was, as usual, utilizing his time in the West Library when the din of confusion reached his ear. He arose, strode to the door and gazed into a most disturbing collection of babbling beauties. Suddenly a shiver went through the entire school. The second floor was sinking! What was to be done? Few who possessed that obsolete power, namely, presence of mind, grasped for the fastly disappearing ceiling and the fixtures thereof. But fear not, gentle reader. Here enters our hero. Arthur coolly turned and re-entered the library, seized the object of his previous perusal and flung said "Stocks and Bonds" beneath the vanishing base, thus checking its downward progress.

In this manner resourceful Arthur saved the day. We beg to add that on account of the lack of lengthy members of the under classes and their apt recollection of recent fire-drills, the sudden approach of the ceiling bothered them not.

P.S.—The BREEZE reporter was upon the scene seven minutes before his worthy rival of the Radiator.

ATTACK ON ICE CREAM CASE

"Charlie" Deacon Drives Ambulance to Scene

CLIFFORD TREFRY MEETS DIS- ASTER

LUNCH ROOM, SOMERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL.—

The rush of customers upon the ice cream can at the lunch counter recently brought disaster upon our eminent classmate, Clifford Trefry, in the shape of drenched clothes. Trefry was evidently at sea, as the water was salt. Confusion reigned, and Trefry, amid the barkings of the hot dogs, rushed to Mr. Small and appealed to that worthy dignitary for assistance. Many of Mr. Trefry's friends crowded about the ambulance with tears in their eyes (owing to the aroma of onions from the "Hall of Cuisine").

The special reporter from the BREEZE estimated the loss of property to be serious, the loss of equilibrium and dignity terrific. Mr. Trefry when approached on the subject, said that a new pair of trousers would undoubtedly assuage his despair.

sible movement of one of the irresponsible confederates, the window-stick was knocked from the grasp of the offender, and fell to the ground, the gray hat descending with it in accordance with Mr. Tripp's laws for the velocity of falling bodies.

Hence, two hours later when school closed, Mr. Vaupel discovered that his headgear was not in its accustomed place.

Observing that it was not lying crushed and irreparable on the floor of the dressing-room, he commenced to make himself a pest to all by endeavoring to gain some information as to its whereabouts. Finally, the poor, helpless, battered article was found safely locked away in a vault in Mr. Tuttle's office, pending investigation. It is hoped that the conspirators will be eventually captured so that it will enable the proper authorities to lecture them severely regarding the proper spirit of brotherhood and fraternalism toward one another.

When interviewed by a reporter Mr. Vaupel stated that he had nothing to say in connection with such an undignified, puerile act; but he hoped that the culprits would be dealt with severely.

Revocanda Staff to Leave for Country

The Year Book staff is seriously considering the question of leaving school June 20, for a short trip to the Berkshires.

As the Revocanda will be out June 20, the members think that the atmosphere will not be suited for their constitutions for some time after that date.

It is seriously hoped that the Year Book staff will change their attitude as it seems only fair that they should be present to receive the congratulations of their loving friends. It is hoped they will return to graduate.

Spy Arrested Chews up Papers

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Charles Bowker, an alleged German spy, was arrested here today. Before he was taken into custody he chewed up and swallowed several papers, a proceeding which of course brought calamity upon his digestive organs. He told the police that he was one of three Germans who has escaped from a Canadian internment camp nine days ago and had swum the Niagara River. Bowker freely admitted that he was anxious to do his "bit" for Germany and was on his way to Mexico. Federal agents are looking into his case.

ATTACK ON PROMINENT ATHLETE

Frank Doherty Assaulted in Broad Daylight

RAID BY PRESERVERS OF PEACE

But for the timely interference of the police, a riot might have developed in the popular cafe, known as Sam Finklestein's, when the famous athlete, Frank Doherty, attempted to instruct John Pickering not to drink from his finger-bowl. The latter, resenting the insinuation of the other, namely, that his manners were not of the highest quality, placed his finger-bowl upon a nearby counter and struck Doherty twice upon his bare wrist. Doherty retaliated with a strenuous cuff upon Pickering's ear.

An excited crowd surrounded the contestants, and gradually became noisy. A policeman broke through the mob and collaring the two disturbers, bore them from the scene.

Table Gossip

Mr. Ambrose Ford entertained his intimate friends, Messrs. Louis Smith, Frank Mahoney, Charles Deacon, and George Chambers, at a pink tea last night. The guests were overwhelmed by the delicious luncheon which was served after the thrilling game of "bridge".

A disaster took place when Mr. Chambers attempted to drink out of his finger-bowl, and Mr. Mahoney recovered the H₂O with the loss of two.

The friends of Miss Helen Jones entertained her in the east library as usual last Friday. A debate ensued in which Mr. Walter Currie was proclaimed a "fibber" by Miss Jones.

Friends of Parker Pillsbury will be glad to know that he is spending his evenings at

No. ——— Cameron Avenue.

Rumor is rife that a certain young lady in Room 215, known by name as "Sonny", is engaged — matrimonially or otherwise.

William Preble will sing at the next concert of the Somerville High Opera Company. The piece which he will render is "Hello, Maggie".

SPORTING

Ping Pong Team Started

CHARLES BAKER, CAPTAIN;
JOHN BENNETT, MANAGER

This year witnesses the first Ping Pong team Somerville High ever had. For some years there has been an increasing interest in this manly sport. Although the coach, Charlie Dickerman, will not give letters this year, it is hoped that in a few years Ping Pong will become one of the major sports.

On January 10, the basement tables were crowded with aspirants for the team. After ten minutes "warming up" a game was called. Charles Baker was chosen chief "whanger" of the first team. John Bennett controlled the "scrubs". The game was lively and owing to Charlie Baker's superb strokes, the first team pulled out a victory. Some of the other promising players were Harry Connelly, James Dalrymple, Oswald Dugmore, George Hall, and Samuel Drukman.

Manager Bennett is now working hard on a good schedule. He has already arranged matches with Medford, Everett, and Malden. It is hoped that room teams will be formed to bring out the best of material. As Ping Pong is a new game it will be hard to arrange schedules with Chelsea, Revere, and Melrose.

Driblets

Shrieks and gnashing of teeth! Gesticulations! Trumpets and cheering! Enter a youth with a noble dome surmounted by massive bumps. Who, you ask? To be sure — that's Harry Moore.

The earth trembles! Windows shake and the fastenings of seats are torn loose. Papers fly about intermingled with chalk. Why? Oh, "Stan" Cruwys just passed this way.

Waltham quakes! The red and blue flaps triumphantly in the face of the red and white. The throng becomes wild with enthusiasm. Again you ask why! Live to learn, my friend. That was "Bubba" Mahoney bringing succor to Somerville's warriors in shape of H₂O encompassed by Sn.

Gr-r-r-r-r! Chews nails and eats doughnuts. Watch him, ladies and gentlemen, lift the ten thousand pound weight, tossing it hither and thither as though it were a nickel or dime. His digestion is wonderful — he can swallow Sam Finklestein's apple pie. What is this? Why, this is Ernie Gilman, the class athlete.

Again on tiptoes! Necks are craned and exclamations become general. A delicious odor pervades the atmosphere. Merely "Dotty" Haskell, muh ignorant companions, me — ahly "Dotty" Haskell.

Yes indeed, we all know her! Popular, universally and locally. Some player, too. Everyone knows "Dot" Dooling.

Seventeen, Seventeen,
Seventeen only.

Such is our joyous cry,
Now that the goal is nigh
Soon we will all look back,
Proudly upon the track
That, tho we oft did slack
Gloriously, ended.
Is it not Seventeen
Of which we'll often dream.
And that last year supreme?
Yes my friend, surely.
Some day we'll all retrace
Our steps, and old friends embrace,
Gather at the same dear place
Just as in Seventen.

Seventeen, Seventeen,
Seventeen, only.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS

We wish to thank our advertisers who have so generously helped to make our first Class Book a success.

The Profession of Business

“Educate for Business.” This is the topic of the day and is on the lips of everyone, and why? This is the answer: Business is the work of the world and you and most everyone else is proud to have it said: “You are a business man—a business woman.”

Business today is a profession, just as much as law or medicine. Yes, Business is really THE PROFESSION of professions and the business man is looked up to as “a guiding star,” a “beacon light” among men.

There is, therefore, no occupation open today to the young man—the young woman—that offers so much of value in training and permanent growth as BUSINESS. The road is well-beaten; it is easy to travel, with pleasant associates and cultured companions all along the way.

FISHER BUSINESS COLLEGES, located in Somerville, Cambridge, Roxbury and Waltham, are the technical training schools of Business for Greater Boston; supplying its student body with that expert business knowledge, which enables its possessor to shine in the field of Commerce.

If you want to be safe and sure,—to get the latest and the best in Commercial Education,—it will be well for you to investigate the claims of these four well-known Business Training Schools and secure an early registration.

TUFTS COLLEGE

You are always certain to find
